Excerpt from The Early Spread of Religious Ideas: Especially in the Far East Treasures of knowledge are enshrined in that literature and in those languages, and if we wish to learn the early history of the idea of God we must seek it in the ages before the Semites and Indo-Europeans began their career. The knowledge of God in the human consciousness reached its second stage about five thousand years ago, when these races settled down in the lands they now occupy. The Hindus and Persians left Europe and came back to Asia, the home of their forefathers, fighting their way as they came. The Semites were driven by this invasion from their temporary home in Central Asia and Persia to Arabia and Mesopotamia. Language shows that mankind began their life on the earth with a common speech, worship, and religion. If language is treated fairly, and the comparison of the vocabularies patiently pursued, this fact comes clearly into view. In the ages before Abraham there was revelation, and it is recoverable. This is my main point. I have aimed to prove it and to illustrate it. The first revelations were made to men who preceded on the chart of time both the Chinese in China and the Accadians in Babylonia. The Accadians inherited the tradition of those revelations in Babylonia and the Chinese in China. In the providence of God it was by genealogical records in the family of Shem, as we have them in Genesis, that the progress of religion from the beginning was to be preserved to coming ages; but we must also diligently search into the Babylonian traditions.
